The Senate was in session just fifteen minutes to day, adjournment being taken until tc-morrow out of respect to President McKinley, who is to-day in attendance upon the funeral of his mother. No business beyond the in-troduction of bills and resolutions was Among the bills introduced was one by Mr. Kyle to change the immigration laws of the United States. His bill provides that all immigrants shall have their test of education made by the United States consuls at the points nearest to their homes.

HOUSE.

In the House tc-day on motion of Mr. Lawrence, Saturday, January 8, was set aside for paying tribute to the memory of the late Representative Wright, his predecessor. Then without further preliminary business the House west into committee of the House went into committee of the whole and proceeded to the considera-tion of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill.

Mr. Bingham, in charge of the measure, explained its provisions in detail. Mr. Bingbam said he would offer an amendment to reduce the clerical force in the pension office by 96 clerks, involving a reduction of $115,000 in salaries. This reduction did not appear in the bill as reported and must be

Mr. Bingham said that he and his colleagues on the appropriations committee felt satisfied that a reduction of from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000 could be made in the salaries of subordinate officers by a process of weeding without in any way impairing the government service, and therefore every suggestion from heads of departments for ic-crease of salaries had been rejected. He called attention to the provision of the bill curtailing the sick sick leave allowed clerks which had been greatly abused. Investigation had shown that in addition to the regular 30 days leave 16 per cent. of the clerks obtained each year 30 days sick leave.

Mr. Bingham did not discuss the appropriations providing for the maintenance of the civil service commission but stated that the widest latitude would be allowed for debate, even if it should run over the boliday recess. He asked, however, that the provision of the bill relating to civil service and the debate thereon should go over until after the consideration of the other features of the bill were concluded.

Mr. Grosvenor, under whose direction the fight on the civil service law is being made, expressed the opinion that the bill should not be pressed to a final vote until after the holidays. While he did not favor an attack on the appropriation in this bill the country was greatly interested in the subject and he thought it could be discussed with profit at this time.

Mr. Bingham's request was agreed to and an hour and a half was set aside for general debate on the rest of the bill. Mr. Barrett took the floor and made some general remarks in support of the civil service law, in the course of which he referred to the slender minority against the civil service law when it passed the House in 1883. The vote stood 155-47. But three of that minority, he said, were now members of the House-Messrs. Bland, McMillin and Steele. This statement flushed a series of explanations that gave the anticivil service members repeated oppor-tunities to applaud. First, Mr. Steele arose and said he had never had occalooked. He was proud, he said, to be

Mr. Marsh also claimed a place in the vote with which he was better satisfied. Then Messrs. Cannon and Bingham reiterated their opposition to the broad of a century, and to day stands at the head. It never disappoints. Free trial bottles at E. L. Allen's Drug law was passed under suspension of the law was passed under suspension of the rules, practically without debate, and never contemplated an extension by executive orders that would cover 87,000 government employees. There was much applause and laughter during this series of statements and Mr. Dockery suggested that the members of the other side to saye time have leave to file their apologies for voting for the law.

Mr. Barrett, continuing, insisted that the law was a republican measure, passed by republican votes and that the party was irrevocably committed to the policy of civil service reform. The republicans of Massachusetts, he said, believed in leaving the law and its administration to the republican President in the White House.
